JVP-Voyager is a desktop search application integrated with a web browser that helps users search their desktops and the Internet. JVP-Voyager has several ways to search your desktop so that it is more efficient and useful. The desktop is not the internet. You don't need 1,000 pages ranked. What you need are the exact pages you are looking for in a general area on your desktop. When a search engine plots an index, it is making a word list. A computer can search a word list with lightning speed. It is like an index at the back of your book, a word list with pages noted where they appear. If, however, you want indexing of your hard drive, as opposed to web sites on the internet, indexing must be done daily since you change files and location all the time. If a new file is downloaded, it cannot be included in the search until a new indexing has taken place. This happens in the background, and it uses up resources, slowing down your computer. You can modify JVP-Voyager's search indexing parameters for the most efficient way to search your desktop. Fully integrated with Web Browser (Including Internet Explorer, Firefox and Opera) Plug-ins for the most common web browsers Interactive search Supports different screen resolutions, languages and special characters Search all local drives, FTP and Google Customizable search index size Supports A-Z letter keywords and wildcards Search by date and time Support for big and small keywords, text or numbers Possibility to use the reverse search Support for complex searches and Boolean operators Supports regular expressions (regExp) Search by email address, username or group Keywords can be separated with any character Dummy content for the results Supports external index file of keywords or the main text Search via the Start Menu Keywords, files, folders, recursively Choose the icons you want to search Search the downloaded file content Preview images (thumbnail) Supports different file types including.doc.xls.xlsx.txt.ppt.pdf etc No need for a special program Windows 95, Windows 98, Windows NT, Windows 2000 and Windows XP compatible Search the internet (results) Optionally use Google or Yahoo to search on the internet Follow websites via links Recordings and Java HelpDesk 5.0 This document explains how to create a Java Help Desk application using JSP, Servlets and JSP EL. I wrote my own Helpdesk application using Servlets and JSP. The application uses standard Java swing. It is based on the following JSP Page for user interface, and servlet to manage the incoming calls. The applications allows for simultaneous access from a web browser, while the application itself is open. JDBC Tutorial (Part 1) In this tutorial we will learn JDBC - programming language that is used to interact with the databases. We will learn about databases and the different types of databases. Designing RESTful Web Services In this tutorial we will cover how to design RESTful web services using Java. We will also cover the different aspects of REST architecture. JSP Documentation The purpose of JSP documentation is to help you to identify all the Java Server pages(JSP), and also to describe JSPs elements like JSP include, JSP page, JSP tags, JSP EL, JSP scriptlets etc. Deploying a Java Web Application In this tutorial we will learn how to deploy a Java web application with Tomcat server. We will also learn about service providers, documentation, and cross browser testing. Java Servlets The purpose of Servlets is to make the services of Java Web Applications available to other applications. Servlets are used in a Java Web application for two reasons: Servlets are used to keep the programming logic of the Web application in the server side. Servlets are used to make the Java Web application modular so that it can be reused by many other web applications.
