Determination of trace elements in herring using  $\gamma$ -aminobutyric acid as a solvent and an internal standard. A method for the determination of Cd, Cu, Pb, Mn and Zn in herring using  $\gamma$ -aminobutyric acid (GABA) as a solvent and its use as an internal standard is reported. Fe and Co were removed from whole herring by acid digestion. Trace element analysis was performed using L-proline-amide-D-glutamate (PADG) coupled with graphite furnace atomic absorption spectrometry (GFAAS). The procedure was simple and reproducible. The concentrations of Cd, Cu, Pb, Mn and Zn in herring were at levels of 2.9-3.7, 119-252, 98-352, 23-160 and 107-839 microg/kg wet weight, respectively. Based on the results, the concentrations of the elements in herring examined were related to various types of fish.

2.27.2014 Top Eleven It's been a while since I posted something here. This fall has been a very busy one and I have been neglecting my personal blog! I'll try to be better about updating here a bit more in the coming months. I have been busy working on the development of a new book project, titled Second Life for Children: A Fun and Interactive Guide to Creativity and Play. The project is currently in the very early development stages, but I thought it might be interesting to share some of the materials I have developed while working on this project. I plan to be releasing the book in late 2015! I have also been having fun with Top Eleven, a game I started back in college. Like many of you, I used to play computer games and computer strategy games all the time in my college days. At the time, I was more interested in strategy games such as Chess, Dots and Boxes, Risk, Scrabble, and even Board and Tower. At that time, I also loved playing card games such as Bridge, Poker, and Mahjong, which were mostly played face to face with a small group of friends. Now, there's another genre of gaming I have become very passionate about:

Two national health insurance systems, the Czech National Health Insurance Funds (CZHI) and the Swiss Reimbursement Scheme (Einwohner-, Künstliche Behandlungs- und Rehabilitationsschein), are similar because of their long traditions and history, both of which date back to more than a century. Nevertheless, the two systems have differences that can be observed at three levels: (1) General State Fund for Pension and Health Insurance; (2) Health Care Payment (technological level); (3) Individual Health Insurances (covered population level). In this paper, we describe the general approaches to coverage, assistance and reimbursement in both systems and discuss the ways in which they differ at the individual level in terms of eligibility, risk and financial sustainability. The differences are relevant in practice due to the fact that the CZHI introduced an innovative method of financing for the first time in the history of the CZHI. Our analysis shows that some differences in behavior at the individual level will be observed in the near future.## Makefile for ALSA # Copyright (c) 2001 by Jaroslav Kysela # snd-cs4236-objs := cs4236.o snd-cs4236-objs += gusclassic.o native.o 82138339de
