Screen Virtual Keyboard for Chrome can be found on the Chrome Web Store. An English (US) version of the video is available on our YouTube Channel. The Google team has recently announced that they are working on an extension that brings a basic Google App-like experience to Chrome users. This extension, the Google Search Assistant, will replace your standard search box with a more minimalist search form similar to that found on the YouTube mobile app or Google's other apps. The upcoming extension, which is still in the beta stage, has reportedly received positive feedback. So, the official Google Chrome team is looking into the project's creation. The main focus of the extension is to make it easier to do a quick Google search without having to visit a website. The new tool not only lets you type your search query directly in the toolbar, but it also lets you type your search query on a local webpage and perform a Google search right away. The extension can be easily enabled or disabled by moving a button from the toolbar to the Extension panel. If you have never used the extension before, the default search engine will automatically be set to Google. The extension is currently only compatible with Chrome, but the team plans to work on making the extension compatible with other browsers such as Opera and Mozilla as well. At its core, the Google Search Assistant tries to mimic the Google search box found on different websites. The Google Chrome extension basically does everything you are used to on other websites. From that single search bar, the Google Search Assistant allows users to do a Google search on the internet, check the weather, make a YouTube search, and perform a Google search in a webpage. There are a lot of people that hate the new Google Search Bar since it represents a unified search bar that updates itself for each search query. The Google team tried to solve the issue by allowing users to "personalize" their search results by adding multiple search engines on the same bar. Since the new extension is still in the beta stage, there are still lots of glitches. However, if you enjoy the new interface, you can easily enable this extension from the toolbar as well. There are four different keyboard size options, 20 keyboard layouts, support for IME languages and more. As of today, Australia is one of the best places to live and do business in the world. One can now do business and work out of his home, without having to leave. The cons and pros of a virtual assistant The pros of a virtual assistant, are that there are no real-world office-related expenses (heat, electricity, office equipment). It allows you to reduce the amount of working hours. The average number of working hours is reduced by as much as 33%. People who are working 24/7 can still continue to do so, as long as they schedule their virtual assistants in. Another positive is that it's cheaper. A virtual assistant won't ask for higher wages or "perks", and you will save on payroll and other office-related expenses. Cons of having a virtual assistant Generally, there are no cons to having a virtual assistant. Some people might argue about the amount of time that is lost. But there is a solution to that. Depending on the service you hire, you will be assigned help on the projects that are most complex and time-consuming. When outsourcing your project management, there are no fixed rates. Some services will charge you more when you have more complex projects. Do not underestimate the costs The virtual assistant won't cost you a lot. There are some that charge a monthly fee. Still, you can save money by paying per project. It takes time to find the right person to hire. In the beginning, you will have no one to chat with. Eventually, the virtual assistant will learn to read human emotions and develop their own unique intuition. Choosing the right virtual assistant There is no one-size-fits-all solution. You need to check the pros and cons of each service you are considering. Some people will prefer to work with one virtual assistant, while others are happier with more than one. Personally, I found that it is easier to work with two virtual assistants. The first one provides strong project management assistance, while the second one works on my personal business and assists me with sensitive information. I also found that the concierge business model is one of the best. Most services offer a concierge service, where
