The Elden Ring Game is the official online game world of the original IP from Masaya Kojima, developed by 5pb. The title is the first story-driven role-playing game where you can be a playable character while you interact with other people. The story of the Elden Ring begins between the Lands Between and the World of Eden, and takes place approximately 300 years from the original game. The history of the Lands Between is shrouded in mystery, and players can create their own story. The Lands Between are a place where the Elden will eventually all return to Eden, and this is where the other people who have been travelling on the Trails of Time since the dawn of time have been staying. Life in the Lands Between is similar to life in the World of Eden. A large number of people is searching for a way to return to Eden, and to get to their ideal future. It's a place where memories are quickly lost and no one knows the history of their world. Players who play a character created by The Elden Ring Game will be rewarded with real money in the game world. In addition, players who play the game will be entered into a drawing that will take place at the end of the marketing campaign. In the game, players will change their appearance, collect items, take on quests, and help others on the Trails of Time as a playable character, and in turn they will influence the future. Key Features:

- Story-driven RPG where you can be a playable character while you interact with other people.
- An epic story that blends the online action RPG genre with the visual novels genre.
- Create your own story and experience the Lands Between as you struggle to make the most of a grim destiny.
- You can take on quests to secure the help of the world's people and the power of the Elden Ring.
- Different types of playable characters: Warriors, Mages, Ninjas, and many more.
- Over 70 unique weapons, and over 60 types of equipment.
- The game features dynamic battle systems, a quest system, and a new Steam-like features system where you can invite your friends to play.

Finally, a method that could sum up the wisdom of four years on the job in a single number, perhaps useful in an auto industry making $500 million decisions every year—the development of the B20. As the commanding general of the Civilian Corps, I was responsible for selecting and training 18,000 people from 18 countries, who were charged with discussing, debating and voting on the provisions of the agreement reached on last Friday's EU-US summit. The result is what may be dubbed a uni-party document, dominated by American wishes and sold to the US by the Commission, Parliament and the Council. The problem was that by now it had been watered down to common sense by each of the parties, who had spent the past four years fighting amongst themselves to implement a policy considered essential to the future. The B20 is an extremely complicated financial affair, which will be on the agenda for each member state, and for the European Parliament, in the coming weeks as the single market becomes a reality. The Treaties being finalised are only a start for the EU. Parliament will have to face the choices having to be made with those 26 different nations. Naturally, we'll have to wait for the expertise of our colleagues in Frankfurt, or somewhere else. The EU
