Q: Creating a User Registration Form using html, php and mysql i am trying to create a registration form for my website and i've decided to keep it as simple as possible, so i am using a table called users to keep the details of the user (I am using HTML/PHP/SQL). The table is empty as of now as i can't test my registration page as the site is currently non-functional. The form is simple, and asking for some basic details. I am trying to prevent malicious users from registering to the site by checking the database against the information they enter, to ensure it is legitimate. The problems i'm having are that, as the table is empty, i'm only going to have room for 2 fields in the form, and the field names are both usersid and username, the first field is filled by the number of rows in the table, and the second is taken from the url of the form. What i'm trying to achieve is to ensure that you enter enough information to make the database entry, for example, you could enter username, name, email etc, but not a bunch of nonsense like i.e. test1, test2, test3, etc. Here's the code i'm using. Database: Table created with the fields userid, username My registration code: 6d1f23a050
