Although it has been suggested that a similar immune evasion mechanism exists in HIV infection, these experiments were performed using recombinant vaccinia virus, which infects antigen-presenting cells (APCs) and many other cell types. It is likely that the role of B cells in immune evasion is unique to HIV infection and that the effector function of B cells is not as important as in other infections. B Lymphocyte Activation in the Absence of T Cell Help {#S4} === == T follicular helper (T~FH~) cells, a subset of CD4$^+$ T cells that are developmentally programmed to support B cell responses, have been shown to be the primary source of CCR7$^+$IL-21$^+$ T~FH~ cells during an acute HIV infection ([@B56], [@B57], [@B66]). However, not all B cells are generated in the T~FH~ pathway ([@B56], [@B57]), and in the absence of a functioning T~FH~ cell response, there is a decrease in plasmablast differentiation into long-lived plasma cells, and a decrease in antigen-specific IgG and IgM plasma cell production ([@B56]). There also appears to be a shift away from isotype switching
